"Hon. John Grigsby," Charles Klein's drama in which Frank Rossen is starring this season, has been called by Montgomery Phister, the dramatic critic, "the great American play." It is thoroughly original, genuinely American, and it presents a picture of life that for accuracy and human interest has rarely been equaled on the stage. The scenes are laid in Illinois, in 1848, and it is no secret that the chief character, John Grigsby, the poor man's lawyer, was modeled after Abraham Lincoln. The dry, quaint humor, for which Lincoln was noted, abounds in the play, and although many of the scenes are dramatically intense almost to the point of being tragic, the vein of comedy runs through them all. The play will be at Washington Opera-house on Saturday, November 16th.

Local Managers Wish Some Home Folks Would Get "Salvation."

A dispatch from Upper Sandusky, O., says the following letter was received by Oscar Bilhartz, Secretary of the Wyandot County Fair Association, which is self-explanatory:

The gentlemen who gave the Fair in this city a couple of years ago would be greatly relieved if about $200 of their visitors were each struck with 25 cents worth of salvation of the Wyandot county brand.

Gov. Beckham, of Kentucky, Addresses a Letter to the Governor of Indiana.

SOME VERY SERIOUS CHARGES MADE.

He Claims That Governor Durbin Violated His Oath of Office to Support the Constitution.

Proceedings May Be Instituted in the Supreme Court of Indiana to Test the Power of the Governor's Refusal.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 12.—Gov. Beckham has addressed to Gov. Durbin, of Indiana, a letter replying to the criticisms by that executive of the courts and officials of Kentucky in his recent letter refusing to honor the requisition for Taylor, who was wanted for alleged complicity in the assassination of Gov. Goebel. He severely arraigns Durbin for refusal, charging that in doing so he violated his oath of office to support the constitution of the United States, and that he became "a party after the fact to the most infamous crime in the history of this state, the cold-blooded and dastardly murder of an eminent and distinguished citizen of Kentucky."

The Kentucky executive also charges that Gov. Durbin's action in refusing was the result of political bargain made before his election to office, and characterizes his charges against the courts and officials of Kentucky as slanderous and unbecomingly misrepresents.

He takes the stand that the governor of a state has no discretionary power, but only ministerial power in the honor of the United States. He states that from other states, and this is taken here as an indication that steps will shortly be taken in the courts to compel Durbin by mandamus to honor the requisition. If such proceedings are instituted they will be in the courts of Indiana and taken on appeal to the supreme court.

When the train stopped Harby stepped out of the car, and Redding, it is alleged, shot him dead. No other particulars are known. RATHBUN CAPTURED.

The Man Supposed to Have Died in a Jeffersonville Hotel Is Still Alive.

DEAD BODY HELD AT LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

A Startling Confession Made By the Man Arrested By the Louisville Authorities.

He Had Formed a Plan to Collect Four Thousand Dollars Insurance From the Army.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 12.—Newell C. Rathbun, who was supposed to have been found dead in a Jeffersonville hotel last Thursday, has been arrested here. According to Rathbun, the corpse which was shipped to Little Rock for burial was the body of W. L. Ten Eyke. The police say Rathbun has confessed to desertion from the United States army and to having forged a plan to financially collect $4,000 insurance on his life, but that he denies having killed the man, who died in the Jeffersonville hotel.

Rathbun is held as a fugitive from justice.

The arrest was made on information from Sergeant Johnson of the United States recruiting station. Rathbun enlisted under the name of "Lou Hood, Detroit."

Sergeant Skinner had read the story of the Jeffersonville case and circumstances connected with the new recruit aroused his suspicions. One of the facts that struck him was that he had bought the recruits from a soldier friend. Other circumstances were his knowledge of army affairs about Little Rock. Saturday he passed the examination and enlisted.

At the detective's office Rathbun was put through the sweating process, and under pressure made the following statement, according to his inquiries.

"My name is Newell C. Rathbun, and my home is in Little Rock, Ark. Several months ago I deserted from the army and went to St. Louis in company with another recruit by the name of W. H. Ellis. I soon lost sight of him, and went on to Little Rock. There I was married, and then I came to Louisville about ten days ago and formed a plan to make the insurance company that I was insured, so that I could collect the insurance. I fell in with a man, who said his name was W. L. Ten Eyke. He was from the Salvation army quarters in Louisville, and told him of my plan and he agreed to help me. Our plan was to obtain a corpse from some place, put it in a hotel in Jeffersonville, and then set fire to the hotel. While we were in Jeffersonville we took a number of drinks and Ten Eyke got drunk. I think his death was caused by drinking. I put the letters addressed to me in his pocket and left. I did not kill him. When he came to Louisville and was put to the recruiting office and enlisted. My real home is in Detroit."

The police are trying to establish the identity of the dead man and one of their theories is that he was a tramp that Rathbun had fallen in with. The police have telegraphed to the Little Rock authorities to hold the corpse. A gold watch, bearing the name "W. H. Ellis" was found on Rathbun. He refused to say where he got it. The police are now endeavoring to locate the handwriting of "Lou Hood."

The recruit, was very similar to the signature, "W. L. Ten Eyke," on the Jeffersonville hotel Thursday was Charles Goodman, of Evansville, Ind. Goodman left the Salvation army headquarters in Louisville Wednesday night saying he was going to Indiana and has never returned. It is said the description of Goodman and that of the man who was afterward found dead tally.
